FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Free “Music Around the World” concert to take place in Atlanta’s Centennial Park

ATLANTA – A free international concert is scheduled for downtown Atlanta’s Centennial Park Pavilion (on the corner of Andrew Young International and Marietta Street) from 6 to 7 p.m. Thursday, July 1.

The “Music Around the World” concert, which is a gift to the Greater Atlanta community, will feature approximately 10 groups including Mariachi Renacer Mexican singers, Eliel Barrial, saxophone, and Grupo Boses, singers from the Inter-American Division. Event emcee will be Mark Sigue, associate pastor for youth at Sligo Seventh-day Adventist Church in Takoma Park, Maryland.

According to Tanya Holland, concert organizer, the purpose of the event is to share with the community the cultural talents found within the world church of Seventh-day Adventists. Through music, attendees will be encouraged to take the invaluable, yet free gift of grace and love available to all. The concert is sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist Church in conjunction with the “Take the Gift” public relations initiative that has been targeting the Atlanta media market.
